EDUCATION

PROGRAM TITLE: News 3 @ FOUR

TYPE: News

DATE OF BROADCAST: January 25, 2001

DESCRIPTION: Your kids could have easy access to video games that you might not want them playing. New reports show games are falling into kids hands too often because the ratings system recently put in place isn't enforced enough by retailers. Kids were sent in to try to purchase games at several popular stores across the country- officials found only two denied the kids repeatedly. Several Senators are now working on legislation to give government regulators new power to restrict video game advertising.
